FORTUNA

OVERVIEW.

An elegant and innovative yacht designed by the esteemed Espen Øino, FORTUNA offers a huge amount of beautifully crafted living space including three interior decks of guest accommodation, a very rare and large sun deck for a yacht of her size and some spectacular special features.

Up on the sun deck, a waterfall cascades down from the hardtop into the jacuzzi pool. There's a teppanyaki grill as well as a barbecue, a dining table facing a lounge in cool shade, a DJ console and ample space for dancing. A large, sociable seating area is up front in full sun and she has four big daybeds for sunbathing astern.

Her exterior spaces are impressive enough but when you step inside, prepare to be wowed. The welcoming, luxurious interior is designed in a clean, contemporary style with a bright yet soothing palette of pale neutral tones. The master suite is a full-beam cabin with a separate study; the other guest cabins are three doubles and a twin.

The main deck saloon is one of several social hubs. It's a wide and comfortable lounge with ample space for entertaining, a white marble floor, panoramic sea views through floor-to-ceiling windows on both sides, and wide-opening glass doors leading out to the shady aft deck with its twin dining tables and open-air lounge – and then on to the sunbathing zone astern. The forward part of the saloon, subtly separated from the sofas without being enclosed, is an intimate formal dining room.

One level up, the sky lounge doesn't just offer commanding views, it has a massive 83" TV screen and comfortable sofas for 10 guests. There's a good sized gym just off the sky lounge and also has double glass doors on both sides leading out onto balcony terraces as well as the aft doors opening onto the upper aft deck, where there's a sit-up bar, a large dining table and another outdoor lounge.
